Women's Resource Center Center has been saving lives for 15 years

By Don Staruk

The Women's Resource Center in Lawrence has been giving battered women someone to talk to, a place to go, and it has been saving women's lives for the past 15 years.

Last year, 2,400 calls came to the center's hot line, 1,800 women came to the center for help, and 50 women and 100 children used its shelter.

As the center celebrates its 15th anniversary, several Andover women can take pride in what the center has accomplished because they were there either at the beginning or for most of those years.

Emily Perkins, of 28 Foster Circle, was one of the original founders of the center back in 1977 when members of an Andover women's group decided to start a women's center they thought would have a varied focus. She was also the first executive director of the center.

Ms. Perkins, 42, was coordinating CETA, the state's Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, volunteer programs at the Lawrence YWCA when she joined the center. The group included Susan Schmitke, formerly of Andover and who now lives in Maine, who Ms. Perkins considers the founding mother of the group.

Also involved in founding the center were Caroline Reeze and

How Andover police handle domestic violence

Domestic abuse, or at least its reporting, is on the increase in Andover, according to Sgt. William MacKenzie Jr., Andover's training officer responsible for keeping the force up to date on domestic abuse laws.

"We're getting more calls,"

Sgt. MacKenzie said last week.

Andover had 25 domestic abuse incidents reported in the first 10 months of this year, compared to 24 in all of 1991.

The number of domestic calls without reported abuse are also up, from 68 in 1991 to 91 already

Packed meeting spends $2.4 m on school repairs

By Lisa Boudreau

The 1,473 people who packed into the Collins Center Monday night for Special Town Meeting were in the mood to vote yes. They appropriated more than a total of $3 million, which covers school repairs, architectural plans for more elementary classroom spaces, and inspection of all property in town. Voters also gave officials the green light to plan a town retirement funding schedule.

Article 1

Voters approved - 1,287 to 20 - borrowing $2.4 million to be paid back during the next 10 years. The money will be spent right away to make major repairs to the town's schools.

Teachers put off strike, for now

By Lisa Boudreau

Teachers were back in their classrooms this week after approving a strike by a narrow margin Friday morning, Nov. 6, and then postponing it.

According to one teacher who asked not to be named, the vote was approximately 157 for and 146 against the strike. A simple majority was needed to call a strike, said Steve Jankauskas, spokesman for the teachers' union and a teacher at South Elementary School.

"If we are going to take strike action, we wanted the membership to be seriously and solidly behind the action. We understand the membership has a lot of strong feeling and that they hadn't given up on the bargaining team. We wanted to give the negotiators that latitude" of a strike vote behind them, said Mr. Jankauskas.

Teachers put off strike

(Continued from page 1) will meet Tuesday, Nov. 17, for a third negotiation session with a recently hired private mediator. The two sides planned to meet this week, but a death in the family of one of the union's negotiating team postponed that session, said School Committee lawyer, Nathan Kaitz.

The decision

Teachers said early last week they would decide before school Friday, Nov. 6, to report to school or strike if negotiators hadn't reached an agreement the previous night. The 320-plus union members met at 6 a.m. last Friday and almost unanimously rejected a one-year contract settlement the School Committee offered the previous night.

"The bargaining team did not recommend that the membership accept it. A few voted for the offer and I say let them have the offer if they want it," said Mr. Jankauskas.

The teachers then voted on the strike.

Mr. Jankauskas said one teacher called for a secret ballot, but he was not supported by his colleagues and a standing vote was taken. Right after the teachers approved a strike, a motion was made to reconsider the vote.

Tom Meyers, union president and a social studies teacher at the high school, urged members to table the strike action and allow the union bargaining team to meet with the School Committee and mediator again. Another vote was taken and the strike action was postponed.

"The membership knew it had a choice. We decided to go back (to work) out of respect to the profession, the children and the community," said Mr. Jankauskas.

If negotiations next week do not yield a settlement, Mr. Meyers said the teachers may meet and vote to implement the tabled strike. A vote would be called to either reconsider the vote or to implement the strike.

If they strike

School administrators had a contingency plan ready for last Friday's impending strike. Substitute teachers were on call and ready to staff the schools. If another strike vote is called, school officials said they will be able to notify parents before the start of school that day and communicate the appropriate information.

What comes next

Teachers are continuing their ban against volunteering for any activities not stipulated in their contract. Activities such as athletics, student government, community services and drama, which are run by teachers who receive a stipend, have not been affected.

Bob Lague, a teacher who receives a stipend to direct AHS student productions, said the only effect the ban on volunteering has had is that Doug Halsted, a teacher at Doherty Middle School, has not been able to volunteer to help with this fall's play, Brighton Beach Memoirs.

Mr. Halsted wrote the Townsmen and asked that the following be published: "To all Brighton Beach Memoirs people: These last few weeks, I have really missed you, and have very much wanted to be working with you as usual. However, these have not been usual times. Rest assured that my moral support for you is as strong as ever, and my spirit is still with you. I look forward to better times and to working with you again in the spring. See you at performance time. Break a leg!" Mr. Halsted.

Back to the table

"Of course we are delighted to have the teachers in the classroom and we want to get back to negotiations as soon as possible," said Mary Lyman, a member of the School Committee and its negotiating team.

Ms. Lyman

declined comment on the one-year contract offer Mr. Jankauskas said the committee offered.

It's National Hospice Month

The Board of Selectmen has issued a proclamation officially recognizing November as National Hospice Month for the town of Andover. The Board of Selectmen joins President Bush and Congress in recognizing the growing number of hospice programs that provide care for terminally ill people and support for their families. Nationwide last year, more than 200,000 patients and families utilized hospice services.

Merrimack Valley Hospice, an affiliate of the Home Health Foundation of Andover, has been providing hospice care to Andover and surrounding communities since 1981. The hospice concept advocates care of the patient and family by attending to their physical, emotional, social and spiritual needs. Hospice care is provided by an interdisciplinary team of physicians, nurses, social workers, pastoral counselors and volunteers.

The majority of hospice services are delivered in the home, with inpatient care as needed. Hospice is now nationally recognized as an alternative to traditional hospital care.

According to Raymond Brockill, director of Merrimack Valley Hospice, "Hospice care is proving to be an effective and economical alternative for many people in the final stages of life. Hospice offers appropriate, competent and compassionate care in an environment of personal individuality and dignity."

During National Hospice Month, the Merrimack Valley Hospice Speakers' Bureau is available to speak to local and regional community, business, and religious groups on such topics as, "Volunteerism," "Living with Grief," "The Hospice Alternative" and other topics. To schedule a speaker or for more information on National Hospice Month activities or the volunteer program, call Mr. Brockill at 470-1615.

Collecting Toys for area Tots

For the fifth year, the Andover Internal Revenue Service is joining with the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve in the 45th annual Toys for Tots collection drive. The Toys for Tots program is designed to provide Christmas joy for needy children through the collection of new, unwrapped toys.

Last year, 26,459 toys were collected and distributed to 12,400 children in the community. The Andover IRS assisted in collecting 4,352 of these toys.

Toys for Tots was conceived in 1947 by Marine Corps Reserve Major William Hendricks. The program began as a local event to aid orphaned children of World War II. That year, three weeks prior to Christmas, celebrities and others pitched in to collect nearly 7,000 toys.

The Andover IRS joined the Lawrence Marines in 1988 in an effort to provide toys to underprivileged children in eastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

Residents can drop off a toy starting Nov. 23 at boxes in the following locations: Andover Service Center, 310 Lowell St.; Andover Bank, 61 Main St.; Methuen IRS, Milk Street; Medical East, 9 Branch St., Methuen.

Doing small things with love . . .

By Mary Katis

Every Friday morning from 9 to 11, Evelyn Avallone, of 67 Court Street, North Andover, takes her enthusiasm and sewing materials to the North Andover Senior Center to make dolls for children with AIDS. She has a dedicated group of volunteers who work with her assembling the dolls. The community service project was named Dolls for Dolls by Mrs. Avallone. The idea grew from a North Andover Library class that Mrs. Avallone designed for children from 9 to 90.

"Hazel Hart is my right hand," said Mrs. Avallone. "Hazel sets up the tables at the senior center for the volunteers and keeps the attendance record. Everyone is important."

Some of the Friday morning volunteers are Antoinette Moretti, Helen Kent, Mary Kezarjian, Claire Pettine, Ellen Fraser, Ann McCabe, Margaret and Marguerite Cooper, Mary Licciardillo, Brenda Sampson and her children, Ryan and Lacey Sampson.

"I enjoy making the little dresses," said Ms. Moretti.

Ann McCabe likes to draw and paints the dolls' faces with non-toxic magic markers. Ms. Hart and Ms. Kent, who have been friends for 50 years, enjoy working together making these dolls.

which is the hardest job," said Ms. Hart.

If someone makes the whole doll then their name can be written on the back of the doll.

"There are many young mothers in town who like to sew and do needlework," said Ms. Sampson. "I wish they would come and help us. I bring my children and they are learning about the children with AIDS and about sharing."

"In between serving Meals on Wheels, I trace patterns for the dolls and donate material," said Ms. Licciardillo. "It keeps me busy. Besides, what would I do with my time. I think about the babies and feel sorry for them. When I'm working on the dolls, I feel close to the babies and wish I could cuddle them. I love children."

Love dolls . .

(Continued from page 4) unteer. Elaine DeCaires, the center's receptionist, has been keeping the materials organized for the classes and has helped store many of the generous donations from the community.

Seniors develop an understanding of the disease and develop compassion for people with AIDS, said Mrs. Avallone. This project gives a senior a chance to reminisce about her own childhood and gives her a chance to help AIDS victims.

Sue Ellen Holmes, of the North Andover Library, asked Mrs. Avallone to teach any kind of craft class at the library. Mrs. Avallone lost her job in the children's room because of budget cuts. She was devastated without her job and missed working with the children. After agreeing to teach a class, she decided to have a doll-making class and to give the dolls away to help children learn to share. Mrs. Avallone wanted to help the less fortunate and from this idea the focus of the children with AIDS was born.

Mrs. Avallone designed a simple cloth doll that would be safe for children of all ages. The AIDS education phase of the library class grew from people asking questions about the disease while they were working on the dolls.

Mrs. Avallone always loved dolls, so making them came naturally. She has been married to Charles Avallone for 59 years and they have five daughters and nine grandchildren. She works on the doll project about 60 hours a week and still has time to be a homemaker and help babysit for her grandchildren.

"It can be painful to do volunteer work," said Mrs. Avallone. "I feel pain for the babies."

Mrs. Avallone called an AIDS hotline in Boston to learn about centers where children with AIDS could be reached. David Schildmeier, a communications officer for the Foundation For Children With AIDS, in Roxbury, sent the pamphlet, "Face The Facts - Children with Aids," which Mrs. Avallone uses to raise people's awareness about children and mothers with AIDS.

The Aids Foundation pamphlet points to five facts:

- AIDS is affecting children at an alarming rate. It will be the fifth leading cause of death for all children in the next decade and a major cause of mental retardation.

- AIDS affects children and families everywhere. Women and children represent the fastest growing segment of the AIDS population.

- Improvements in treatment and care has given children with AIDS a chance to live longer and healthier lives.

- Most children with AIDS live at home with their families.

- Every person can make a difference in the lives of children with AIDS.

There is a tremendous need for helpers to make the dolls, need for cotton materials, a file cabinet and copy machine for mailing records and correspondence. An example of the community helping Dolls for Dolls is Bill Perron, general manager of Cranston Print Works, Cranston, R.I., who donated fabric for 100 dolls. East Coast Graphix of Boston donated a wooden silk screen with an outline of the doll pattern, which lessens the time needed to hand trace the patterns onto the fabric.

Walter Wilson, president of Community Savings Bank of Lawrence, donated a chair with wheels for Mrs. Avallone's garage office, which is filled with names of AIDS resource centers where dolls are to be given.

Dolls have been requested from many cities: Chicago, Washington, Newark, Trenton, Detroit, Brooklyn, Petaluna, Calif., and St. Paul, Minn. The North Andover group needs to make 800 dolls to satisfy the requests on hand.

As requests grew, Mrs. Avallone began reaching beyond North Andover's Senior Center. She summers at York Beach, Maine, and was able to interest a women's group in Camp Eaton, York, to become volunteers. Other volunteers are from Stevens Memorial Library, where Mrs. Avallone is president of the Friends of Stevens Library; Homemakers Womens Club of York, Maine; Retirement Community at Amherst, and the Guilt Club in Zephyrhill, Fla. Mrs. Avallone has made demonstration packets with doll assembly instructions and sample materials. She lectures and gives classes.

The demonstration packets have broadened the Dolls for Dolls scope into the international circle. Padre Guido Velardita, O.F.M., from El Salvador, Central America, will bring the decorated dolls to his country and have local volunteers stuff the dolls and distribute them. The Missionaries of Charity in Calcutta, India, will receive dolls through Sr. M. Dolores, Bronx, N.Y., who will mail the dolls in bulk with the Dolls for AIDS in USA organization.

Mrs. Avallone wrote to Mother Theresa of the Missionaries of

Suspect may be responsible for 200 breaks

By Don Staruk

Andover detectives last Thursday arrested a man and charged him with breaking into five homes in Andover since May, and said he may have been involved in 150 to 200 house breaks during that same period of time.

Gary Farhadian, 37, of 22 Summit Ave., Haverhill, was charged with five counts of breaking and entering in the daytime with intent to commit a felony, and five counts of larceny of over $250.

Two of the breaks Mr. Farhadian is charged with include one a couple of weeks ago on Marion Avenue in which the resident confronted the suspect in the house, and one on Lowell Street last Thursday just hours before he was picked up by detectives in Lawrence. Andover detectives had issued a warrant for his arrest after he had been identified by the Marion Avenue resident.

"We got admissions on all five house breaks he's been charged with, including Lowell Street," Detective David Grant said Friday. "North Andover cleaned up six (breaks); we cleaned up five."

Mr. Farhadian is an alleged heroin addict, according to police, and told them he has broken into 150 to 200 homes in the area, most of which he cannot even remember. He may have been involved in 20 or 30 breaks in Andover, Detective Grant said.

Detectives had spent most of the week searching for the suspect in Methuen. When he was picked up in Lawrence, he was driving a copper colored 1979 Plymouth Volare, which was stolen from New Hampshire.

Mr. Farhadian's arrest brings to 11 the number of suspects arrested for breaks and thefts in Andover in the last nine weeks, according to Detective Donald Pattullo.

At least 21 breaks have been cleared up in that time. Mr. Farhadian allegedly told police that one home he broke into had already been broken into and cleaned out before he got there.

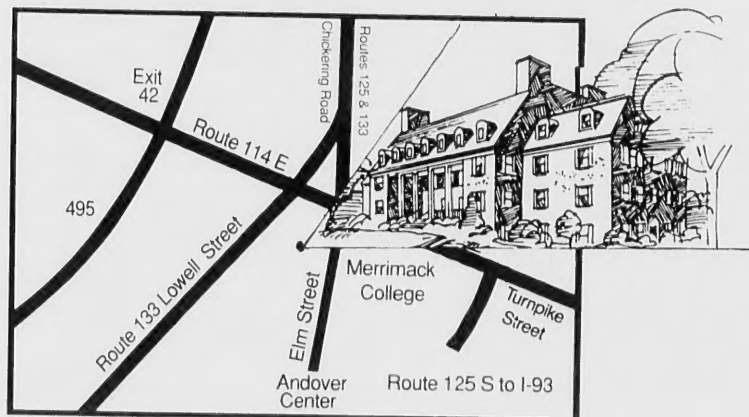

Detectives are hoping those arrests will slow what has become a problem with break-ins in Andover.

"Right now where we stand, we're in a hell of a lot better shape than nine or 10 weeks ago," Detective Grant said.

Methuen's Officer Dick Grant assisted Andover Detectives Kevin Burke, Pattullo and Grant in the investigations that led to Mr. Farhadian's arrest.

Dave Guselli and Patricia Foster, co-owners of Galerie Patricia, show off one of the works of art they sell from their Main Street gallery.

Art gallery opening here

By Lisa Boudreau

Walk into the foyer of 90 Main St. and you'll see a sampling of the art work for sale at Galerie Patricia located in the back of the building. The building is adjacent to Bertucci Menucci.

Patricia Foster of Marblehead and her partner, Dave Guselli of Haverhill, plan to showcase leading contemporary artists' works, including painters Thomas McKnight, Howard Behrens, Fazzino and Pradzynski and sculptures by Erte and Katherine Porter, said Ms. Foster.

In addition to carrying original paintings by these artists, the gallery will sell serigraphs. A serigraph is a silk screen rendition of an original painting.

According to Ms. Foster, several silk screens are cut to mirror the image created by each individual color in the painting. Each color is applied to the canvas through the silk screen to recreate the original design. The serigraphs at Galerie Patricia are numbered and signed by each artist.

"As many as 100 silk screens are used to create an exact copy of the original painting. Serigraphs have made it easier and more affordable for people to collect the work of well-known artists," she said.

Many of the artists' works have sold for $15,000 to $75,000, but by making copies of their paintings through serigraph techniques, collectors can buy numbered and signed copies for $800 to $1,500.

Andover Bank wins Fair Housing Award

Andover Bank recently was presented with the 1992 Fair Housing Award by the Greater Lawrence Community Housing Resource Board. Andover Bank was cited for its ongoing commitment in implementing fair housing programs.

The Greater Lawrence Community Housing Resource Board, which is funded by H.U.D., provides information and training on fair housing issues to local communities based on federal fair housing laws. The Resource Board training programs are designed primarily to keep local realtors informed of all changes in federal fair housing laws and provide new realtors with educational tapes and training programs on fair housing.

Carol Axelrod, president of the Resource Board for the past six years, noted that, "In addition to the above-mentioned training programs, the board also provides training programs for minority individuals working to become members of local real estate boards, assists with the application process to become a licensed real estate broker and subsidizes broker certification fees."

Andover Bank employees Carol Axelrod and Dick Licare have served as key liaisons in the implementation of the board's programs. Ms. Axelrod, a mortgage originator, served as vice president of the board before becoming its president. Mr. Licare, also a mortgage originator, has served as the equal opportunity chairman of the Greater Lawrence Board of Realtors, acting as liaison between the realtors and the resource board.

Three thousand kindergarten teachers, day-care professionals, early childhood specialists, administrators and parents are expected to attend the conference.

Mr. Terry's talk on "Seamless Transitions" will describe key components to an effective transition, from preschool to elementary school, policy for children and their families.

Bank of Boston to hold free seminar in managing personal finances

Individuals and families seeking help in managing their personal finances and restructuring their personal debt will find it at any of 20 consumer credit seminars sponsored by Bank of Boston in conjunction with Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Eastern Massachusetts (CCCS). Lawrence-area residents may take advantage of the seminar being held at Lawrence Public Library on Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 5:30 p.m.

Using worksheets provided at the seminar as a guide, attendees can track their spending levels. In addition, they will learn about credit reporting, the impact of a poor credit rating on future borrowing and how to protect a credit record.

Register at local Bank of Boston branches or by calling 1-800-BKB-LOAN.

Know why bankers wear gray?

The Merrimack Valley Business Women's Network breakfast meeting will be held Thursday, Nov. 12, at 7:30 a.m. at the Marriott in Andover.

The topic will be "The Colors of Business."

Why do bankers wear gray? Why are the Yellow Pages yellow? Learn what colors should be used in making an effective presentation. Phyllis Bowen, owner of Colorgraphs in Merrimackport, will discuss the psychology of color as a communications tool.

Ms. Bowen has owned her own studio for more than 10 years. She is a graduate of North Dakota State University with a bachelor of science degree in home economics and a master of education from Framingham State College.

The breakfast is sponsored by the YWCA.

or around $19,000.

"We're off to a good start," Paul Miller, campaign chairman and Lawrence Savings Bank president, told United Way board members at a recent meeting. "But the best is yet to come."

Mr. Miller said corporate giving is currently down for two reasons - the dissolution of a foundation, a $20,000 contribution, and decreases in some bank gifts.

However, he said the results of Pacesetter campaigns, early campaigns that attained a 27 percent increase, and solicitation of retirees through companies such as Raytheon and AT&T, are two pluses for this year's campaign.

Mr. Miller said the campaign is running 2 percent ahead of last year.

Q. George's fiancée, Miss Flowers, signs a prenuptial agreement in which she waives all rights to George's retirement plan. The agreement specifies that George's beneficiary for the plan will be his first wife, Martha. In the agreement, Miss Flowers acknowledges the effect of her election to waive her survivor rights. George dies soon after the marriage. Who gets George's retirement plan benefits?

A. Miss Flowers, who is George's spouse at the time of his death. An agreement to waive a spouse's rights in a retirement plan is not effective if it is signed before marriage!

Trail fund donates to Bay Circuit Trail restoration

A 17-mile stretch of the Bay Circuit Trail through Andover will be restored by the Andover Trails Committee, thanks to a donation from the Walking Inc. Trail Restoration Fund.

Eric Tentarelli of the Andover Trails Committee was presented with a $2,030 grant by Dawson Winch, coordinator of the Walking Inc. Trail Restoration Fund, to help restore the local portion of the Bay Circuit Trail. Covering more than 180 miles, the trail winds through approximately 30 towns from Ipswich on the North Shore to Duxbury on the South Shore.

The Walking Inc. Trail Restoration Fund was seeded by a grant from Walking Inc., publishers of Walking Magazine, headquartered in Boston. The objectives of the fund are to assist walking clubs at the local level in reclaiming and restoring walking paths.

"Fitness walking is the most popular participatory sport in the country, with over 15 million people taking part on a regular basis," said Mr. Winch. "Walking Inc., publishers of The Walking Magazine, is thrilled to be able to provide the funds to help residents of Andover make the Bay Circuit Trail a reality in their community."

A leading supporter of the Walking Inc. Trail Restoration Fund is Malden Mills. Also, a portion of the registration fee from the Walking Magazine's six-city WalkTime 1992 series are contributed to the fund. In all, more than $5,000 has been contributed this year to organizations across the country.

J. Guerin is certified dental assistant

The Dental Assisting Board announces that Jennifer A. Guerin, of 34 Florence St., can now add the professional designation, CDA, after her name. The letters denote her new status as a certified dental assistant, which was awarded to her Sept. 22 after she passed a rigorous examination.

Since the CDA program was established in 1948, some 100,000 dental assistants have been certified. The Dental Assisting National Board designs and administers the test, which gauges the working knowledge of the candidate.

As a certified dental assistant, Ms. Guerin has demonstrated command of a number of subjects, such as prevention of disease transmission, materials, prevention and management of emergencies and radiation health and safety. She has mastered general chairside procedures to assist the dentist in providing patient.

The graduate of the dental assisting program at New Hampshire Tech Institute class of 1991 is the daughter of Bonnie and Richard Guerin.

She and her partner chose Andover because of its central location to several major highways.

Galerie Patricia is the exclusive United States representative of Canadian artist Katherine Porter.

Ms. Porter paints in watercolor, oils and also makes hand-painted wood sculptures.

Some of the other art includes work by the late Erte, who is considered the father of art deco, she said.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

CLICK GOES THE JAW

The rhythmic clicking noise that an estimated one-third of the population hears at some point in their lives while chewing comes from the temporomandibular joint. This is the joint that rests between the jaw and cranium. It is cushioned by a spongy disc that is normally held in its proper place by the muscles responsible for chewing. At the times when the disc becomes slightly displaced, however, the jawbone may bump against the disc during the chewing process to create a clicking sound. Ordinarily, this problem (called temporomandibular joint disorder) will resolve itself as the jaw simply compensates for the disc's new position. If it does not, and pain and/or difficulty opening or closing the mouth arises, the dentist should be consulted about the problem.

If you've got a problem with any aspect of oral health, we'd like to help. We're concerned about your total well-being, but especially with the health of your teeth and gums. We welcome your questions and invite you to call 475-2431 when you need family dental care. Located at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93, I provide preventative care, complete mouth restorations, crowns and bridges, cosmetic work, sealants, implants, dentures, etc. Hours: Mon & Thur 10-6, Tues & Fri 8-6 and by appointment. P.S. Most jaw problems are caused by stress which manifests itself in teeth clenching and grinding.

Tim Blair joins United Way of MV

The United Way of Merrimack Valley has announced that Tim Blair has joined the organization as coordinator of volunteers through a contractual agreement with computer workstation vendor Sun Microsystems Inc.

Working through Sun's Community Action Volunteer (CAV) program, Mr. Blair will coordinate volunteer opportunities for more than 700 Sun Microsystems employees in the Merrimack Valley. CAV acts as a clearing house for volunteer efforts by matching people with complementary interests, skills and expertise to appropriate community projects. It has been in place at Sun's San Francisco Bay Area site for approximately three years. The company extended the program to its Merrimack Valley operations last year.

Through a unique arrangement, Mr. Blair is a United Way employee whose position is paid for under the Sun contract.

"Through CAV, we want to make volunteering easy for our employees who have shown a great interest in helping our community," said Mark Vermilion, Sun's director of corporate affairs. "We expect Tim's enthusiasm and knowledge of community development issues to be a great asset to our Merrimack Valley CAV program."

Mr. Blair is a 1991 graduate of Tufts University where he studied English, with a concentration in race and gender issues in literature.

Prior to working at Sun, he was office manager for the Management and Community Development Institute at Lincoln Filene Center. While there, Mr. Blair was the principal liaison to more than 500 participants from a variety of small community-based organizations for a non-profit skill-based training organization.

Mr. Blair is an accomplished pianist, vocalist and guitarist.

The United Way of Merrimack Valley provides funding for 60 member agencies and serves 34 communities in southern New Hampshire and northeastern Massachusetts.

Sun Microsystems Inc., is the world's leading supplier of client-server computing solutions.

James Batten attends enrolled agents' conference

James M. Batten, of Cardinal Lane, an enrolled agent, attended the National Association of Enrolled Agents' annual convention Aug. 25-30 in San Francisco, Calif.

The convention provided a week-long opportunity for members to share successful business methods with colleagues from across the country.

Continuing professional education and tax practice management workshops were conducted.

Mr. Batten has been an enrolled agent for a number of years. He operates a tax practice in the Merrimack Valley. His main office is at 451 Andover St., Suite 212, North Andover.

Mr. Batten explains that EAs are tax professionals authorized by the Treasury Department to represent taxpayers before the Internal Revenue Service at all administrative levels. Only EAs are required to demonstrate to the IRS the competence in matters of taxation before they may represent a taxpayer. All EAs specialize in matters of taxation and are the only taxpayer representatives who receive the right to practice from the U.S. government.

A group of 35 students and teachers from Andover High School climbed Mount Cardigan in the White Mountains of New Hampshire last month. They enjoyed spending the day out of doors, free from the pressures of school; getting a chance to breathe some fresh air and taking a look at the beautiful foliage. It was only the first of many hikes and other activities planned by the Outing Club for this year; the next climb was to be up Mount Whiteface.

The Friends of Memorial Hall Library will hold their annual children's book sale during Children's Book Week. The sale will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 17 and 18, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Tapes, puzzles, games and adult fiction will also be available.

Pat Pakos of Andover will speak on "Integration and Inclusive Education of Special Needs Students" at the North Andover PAC meeting Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 7 p.m. in the North Andover Middle School cafeteria. Mrs. Pakos has a master's degree in special education and is coordinator for the Center for Inclusive Education at Simmons College. She is also a consultant to Boston-area school systems.

Twenty-four fourth- and fifth-graders are participating in a hands-on science program sponsored by Genetics Institute of Andover and Cambridge. As part of its community educational program, Genetics sends 12 of its scientists to Sanborn School to teach a before-school class to Andover and Lawrence science students.

The program takes place every Thursday until their Nov. 19 graduation. Genetics has arranged to bus the children from James F. Leonard Magnet School in Lawrence as well as Andover students at West, Bancroft and South, to Sanborn. Class sessions run from 7:45 to 8:45 a.m. The bus then returns the children to their schools.

The men and women scientists volunteer their time to teach about bacteria, show the procedure for a gram-stain, how to kill bacteria, about spooling DNA and how to become a scientist. One hundred Basketball Shoot-Out fundraisers will participate in a basketball clinic with Kevin McHale and Dee Brown in the Boston Garden on March 26. Other winners will receive autographed Celtics basketballs, t-shirts, gym bags and sport towels.

Last year nearly 3,500 students throughout Massachusetts raised $135,000 in Basketball Shoot-Out. They helped provide disabled men, women and children with Easter Seal's therapeutic services.

Naturalist and author Claire Walker Leslie visited the second grade at Sanborn School to help students connect better with nature and its processes through sketching nature scenes. Ms. Leslie observed that students become excited in discovering a way to explore and observe nature using paper, pencil and a quiet eye. Throughout her presentation, she emphasized the detail each animal, insect or flower may have which helped students identify the distinguishing characteristics which is reinforced once the student sketches the topic.

Ms. Leslie was brought to Sanborn by the PTO Enrichment Fund as part of Sanborn's ongoing enrichment program.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

BACK-PAIN PREVENTION

Chiropractic maintains that the best way to address health problems is to prevent them, a philosophy which may be applied to back pain and its causes. The key to back pain prevention is gaining a clear understanding of the back's present condition. This process begins with the chiropractor recording a patient's health history, including any injuries, strains, and/or postural habits that might impact on the back's condition. Next, a comprehensive examination involving spinal motion, muscular balance and strength, and ligament integrity, along with spinal X-rays enables the chiropractor to create a blueprint for future treatment/pain prevention. Once examination reveals the architecture and health of the bone, treatment can be recommended to restore spinal balance and function.

Tens of thousands suffer with back pain everyday. If you are in this category, we would like to help you. Our practice will accept only those patients we sincerely feel we can help. Please call today, at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. Our office is located at 15 Central St. Best wishes for the Thanksgiving holiday!

P.S. Dealing with stress is also a component of any back-pain prevention program.

SELLER'S REMORSE

After just a week on the market, your agent has brought you a terrific offer to purchase your house, a little less than the asking price, but much more than you expected to get. The buyers seemed really nice when you met them. They didn't ask for the family heirloom chandelier in the dining room, and said to go ahead and take the drapes to your new home. After talking with your agent you decide to sell.

Then the agent leaves. You start to think about what you've just done, and you feel awful. You're feeling like you could have gotten more! You know they'll let your garden go to seed and pull down all the beautiful wallpaper you hung yourself. Welcome to what we call "seller's remorse." This is such a common phenomena that it has even been given a name! It's a perfectly normal way to feel, especially if you're selling a home where you've lived for many years and have many fond memories associated with. Remember, it's almost always temporary. Seller's remorse will be overcome with the excitement of moving to your new home!

If there's a move in your future, the real estate specialists at Century 21 Minuteman Realty are ready to serve you. Feel free to visit our office at 2 Elm Square, or phone us at 475-1243.

Easing the 'Superwoman complex' and releasing stress through humor is workshop topic at NECC

Nurse humorist Carol O'Flaherty will present a free workshop on releasing stress through humor on Monday, Nov. 16, at 11 a.m. at Northern Essex Community College's Haverhill campus. The program is designed especially for women.

According to Ms. O'Flaherty, many women suffer from stress because of their desire to be everything to everyone.

"There used to be a superwoman complex," she says, "But we have gone beyond that to being ultrawomen. We have time for everyone but not for ourselves."

Classic symptoms of stress include reluctance to get out of bed in the morning, headaches, insomnia, stomach pains, a short temper and a tendency to be accident-prone, Ms. O'Flaherty says.

She will discuss how women can incorporate the universal language of laughter into their lives and gain physical and psychological benefits.

This program is sponsored by the Women's Resource Network at Northern Essex Community College, a drop-in center where women can meet to discuss issues, share concerns, find support and get information. The lecture will be held in the center in room 109 of the B Building.

For more information, call the Women's Resource Network at 374-3832.

CHEF'S CORNER

The Pasta Shack

Alan Boisvert

This recipe comes to Townsmen readers from the Methuen-based The Pasta Shack, on Merrimack Street near Pleasant Valley. Chef Alan Boisvert specializes in take-out fresh pasta and "gourmet food made simple" — a hot-food menu with dishes ready to go within minutes of placing an order. Chef Boisvert offers Townsmen readers a healthy, quick-and-easy, low-fat recipe that can be brought to the table in less than 20 minutes, even by a novice cook. In fact, everything in this dish can be prepped in the time it takes the water to boil.

Chicken linguine with broccoli

- 1 gallon water
- 1 pound fresh egg linguine
- 1½ pounds chicken breast, skinless and boneless
- 1½ cups broccoli florettes
- 1½ pints lemon chicken sauce
- 1 cup flour
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- ½ cup tomatoes (julienne)

Cut chicken into 1-inch cubes, dredge cubes in flour. Heat oil in 6-quart pot, add chicken and cook until evenly brown. Add sauce and simmer. Put broccoli and linguine in a rapidly boiling water with a pinch of salt added. Boil 1½ minutes from the time you put the pasta in the water. Strain and add to sauce. Serve immediately, topped with freshly grated parmesan cheese and tomatoes.

RELIGION

Ballardvale United will celebrate the 25th anniversary of its church

This weekend, Nov. 14-15, Ballardvale United Church in Andover will celebrate the 25th anniversary of its building at 23 Clark Road.

The event will include an open house with memorabilia at the church on Saturday afternoon, followed by a banquet in the evening at West Parish Church.

On Sunday, Bishop F. Herbert Skeete of the Southern New England Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church will preach and celebrate Holy Communion. A 25th anniversary time capsule will be planted after the service.

Thirty seven years ago, two small struggling congregations in Ballardvale, one a United Church of Christ, the other United Methodist, decided to join together. For 10 years they dreamed, hoped, prayed and planned before finally deciding to make a leap of faith. Then their first full-time pastor, just out of seminary, was Rev. Bob Bosdorf, who helped bring the plans to fruition. Trust funds received over the next two years, together with a substantial pledge campaign, made possible the building in 1967.

Since then six very different types of pastors have brought their unique contributions to Ballardvale, which now has more than 300 members. A full-time preschool and day-care center operates in the church, and every evening it is occupied with various group meetings.

The church on Clark Road turns 25 this weekend.

The Rev. Susan Morrison is now leading the church in a period of dynamic growth, according to the congregation, not only in membership, but also in increased spiritual awareness and challenge to community service.

One week before Thanksgiving, reflect on world hunger at South Church

Thursday, Nov. 19, one week before Thanksgiving, a day of fasting and reflection of the millions of people who are hungry will be followed by a simple meal to break the fast at 6 p.m. at South Church, 41 Central St.

"Fast for a World Harvest" is sponsored by Oxfam International. There are many ways to get involved: skip a meal (or two or three) and make a donation to Oxfam; eat more simply (perhaps without meat as millions do on a daily basis); or take the day to learn more about the problem.

At 6 p.m., break the fast with a meal of soup and bread, followed by a service of prayer, sacred readings and meditation. Call 475-0321 for more information.

Rev. Calvin Mutti welcomes the Andover Romper Nursery School to South Church

The Andover Romper Nursery School, located at St. Augustine's Church for many years, has moved to a new home at South Church, 41 Central St.

The nursery school now holds classes for three- and four-year-olds, Monday through Friday mornings in the Discovery Room of the church. The new facility offers the children an opportunity to fully explore curriculum experiences in science, language arts, arts and crafts, and music.

The teachers' major goals for their preschoolers are to instill a love for school by creating a busy, exciting classroom in a loving atmosphere and reinforcing self-esteem.

The staff includes head teacher Mary Anne Richards and teachers Phyllis Huse and Louise

Spollet, who is also the children's choir director at South Church.

Women's center . . .

Joy Robertson, both of Andover at the time; and Lynn Hamilton and Caretta Nevers of the YWCA. Judith Nathanson, now of Andover, was an attorney for legal services and was instrumental in getting the 209A restraining order passed.

"There were only five of us who sat down and wrote the fund proposal," Ms. Perkins said. "A couple people from the Y and maybe three people from Andover. When we ever got the funding, I tell you we were shocked."

The group set up shop in a room at the Lawrence YWCA and were off.

Change in focus

The center was going to be a networking center, a place to help women find jobs, according to Ms. Perkins.

"We didn't open as just a battered women's center; we were a women's center," she said.

But one of the center's features was a hot line and once the phone started ringing, it never stopped. The majority of calls were from battered women looking for help.

"Within three months it became purely, mainly, absolutely advocacy for battered women and a shelter for battered women," Ms.

Perkins said. "We didn't go to it. It came to us. We opened it up with lots of different ideas of what we were going to offer. It defined itself, it really did."

Violence

Betty Jaffe, of 6 Hawthorne Circle, has been a volunteer on the center's hot line for 12 years.

"Today it has become so much more violent than when I started," Ms. Jaffe said. "They use guns, they use knives now."

"We've actually had a woman in here who survived a gun shot wound to the chest from her husband," said Ellen, from Andover, a legal advocate at the center who asked that her name not be used. Another woman was shot in the groin.

The phones at the center ring about 150 times a day. Then comes the night shift and volunteers such as Ms. Jaffe.

Two or three nights a month when the center closes at 5 p.m., its phone line is forwarded to her house and she answers it until the center opens at 9 the next morning. Quiet nights she may get only two or three calls. Other nights she may get six or seven women looking for advice, a shelter, referrals or just to talk.

Last week she had a call from a woman who had to leave her house with her two children at 4 a.m. because they were being threatened by her husband with a gun. Luckily, that woman had already gotten herself and her children to a safe place to stay. Two weeks ago a woman was knifed by her boyfriend.

"Society is more violent and tolerates more violence," Nassrine Farhooody, executive director of the center, said Monday. "We are a society growing more tolerant and it is collecting in the types of injuries we're seeing in women."

Hot irons, pieces of furniture and biting are all examples of violence that are on the increase, Ms. Farhooody said.

"That's a really vicious thing to do to somebody," she said of the biting.

Some women, like the woman who had already gotten out of the house, are advised to come to the office in the morning for help in filing for a restraining order, for further counseling and shelter if needed.

"Some ask for advice. Some are so frightened they are afraid to talk. It's sad," Ms. Jaffe said.

She has advice for women who are thinking they may need some help.

"Call. There's always something that can be improved. There's always a way for a better life. You've got to take the first step," Ms. Jaffe said.

Funding, services
The center's $300,000 budget is supported heavily by United Way of the Merrimack Valley, along with two small government contracts and several charitable donations.

The shelter, which is a 15-bed house in Lawrence, was bought largely with proceeds from the Rose Cup, a golf tournament organized by a group of women golfers at Andover Country Club who have donated to the shelter for the last few years.

The center has two offices, one in Haverhill (373-4041), and one in Lawrence, (685-2480), staffed by eight full-time and three part-time employees. The hot line and rape crisis intervention are staffed 24 hours a day.

Services include court and legal advocacy, escort services for court and to go home, assistance in finding housing and with getting state and federal entitlements, crisis intervention, support groups and peer counseling and day care.

When a woman checks in at the center she is usually leaving everything.

"The first thing we do is we give them some money so they can do some shopping for food and clothing for her and her children."

Saving lives

Ms. Farhoody said.

Victims are eligible for food stamps as soon as they enter the shelter.

"In our shelter, they can stay as long as three months," Ms. Jaffe said.

The location of the center's shelter remains secret to help protect the victims who stay there. In most cases, women from this area will stay in other shelters and women from other areas, such as New Hampshire or Lowell, will use the Lawrence shelter to help maintain confidentiality.

"It's sort of a mixed bag of what does this woman need to get out of her situation," Ms. Farhoody said.

"(The center) empowers women to begin a new life free from violence," Ms. Jaffe said. "If women don't help other women, who's going to?"

Feminist home wreckers

The center's volunteers were perceived as feminist home wreckers and as invading private issues for a long time, Ms. Perkins said.

"At the time, we were so different," she said. "Just imagine 15 years ago a black woman walking into a police station and saying, 'You've got to take care of this woman because she's getting beat up,'" Ms. Perkins said.

One police sergeant in Lawrence was very difficult to work with. Years later he was shot and killed by his own wife, Ms. Perkins said. "That's the kind of insidious circumstance you could come across," she said.

"The women that were involved in starting the resource center were viewed as wide-eyed feminists, which we were, but don't write that down," she said. "I was. I look back and I realize I wasn't really well rounded. I was young. There were older women who were more mature, women who were married with children. I think the group was real mixed."

It was mostly the women from Andover who offered their homes to shelter the women at first, Ms. Perkins said.

"I would say it was the women from Andover that really made it happen. They were the catalyst," she said.

Ms. Perkins became overwhelmed with the size and scope of the problem the center was trying to deal with and left after three years.

"It was so intense. These guys would come in and we'd be hiding these women," Ms. Perkins said. "I worked there day and night. I had a beeper. It wasn't a job, it was a lifestyle. It is such a complicated issue, that it's hard to address it as a single issue. Dealing with the end result I found to be very draining."

Effects of economy

Research data show that abuse to women increases in periods of economic depression or recession, according to Ms. Farhoody.

State cuts in housing and child care subsidies have taken away the option of leaving home for many women, according to center officials.

And economic abuse is another form of abuse, according to Ms. Farhoody. If a woman has no income of her own and this year.

Last year 33 arrests were made related to domestic abuse and 29 have been made so far this year.

Many of those calls get referred to the Women's Resource Center.

"Sometimes we get calls where women want to know where to go," Sgt. MacKenzie said.

If they don't want to make a complaint, if they are afraid of being identified and police can't convince them to file, they refer them to the Women's Resource Center.

"If they don't want to call us, call the Women's Resource Center. They have someone on 24 hours a day," Sgt. MacKenzie said. "If it's serious, if somebody's getting hurt or assaulted, by all means, call us."

Sgt. MacKenzie sent 10 officers to domestic violence training seminars last month, and said the state and county are providing adequate training. "The state does an excellent job," Sgt. MacKenzie said.

All Andover officers are issued a Domestic Violence Response Reference Handbook, published by the state, which outlines the laws, policies and procedures for handling calls, lists abused persons' rights and shelters available. All officers are also required to have 40 hours of general police training every year.

"One of the things that they hit heavy in that training is domestic violence," Sgt. MacKenzie said.

He also provides roll-call training, giving updates on changes in domestic violence law during daily briefings as they come up.

Getting them out

During a recent round-table discussion on domestic violence at Lawrence District Court, Sgt. MacKenzie brought up a problem he would like to see addressed. He would like to see the state give police the authority to remove abuse victims from their home when their lives are being threatened and they won't leave voluntarily.

Sometimes a woman may call and say her life is being threatened, and investigating officers find probable cause that her life may in fact be in danger, despite issuance of a restraining order. Yet the woman refuses to leave her home.

"We can't get them out of the house," Sgt. MacKenzie said.

Sgt. MacKenzie would like to have judges empowered to issue an order for the victim to leave the home. The state would offer a safe house for 24 hours, or until court if it's on a weekend, for the woman and any children.

That situation is no different than a hazardous chemical spill or a fire when police are empowered to evacuate an area when lives are being threatened, the sergeant said.

A 209A restraining order is a piece of paper that can't save anybody's life, Sgt. MacKenzie said. It often takes time to serve an emergency restraining order, and often when one is served, the accused can react angrily. That is the time the victim should be out of the house, at least until both sides can appear in court the next day, he said.

Cases here

One morning last year police got a call from the relative of a woman in the Andover Street area saying that their daughter's boyfriend was threatening to kill her. It was somewhat of a hostage situation where police finally negotiated their way into the house where the man was threatening the woman with a knife. The man finally gave up the knife.

But when the couple got to court, they made up and the victim did not request a restraining order against the man or file a complaint.

"That happens quite a bit," Sgt. MacKenzie said.

Sometimes the factor is alcohol, the holidays, money or some other form of stress, which, once removed, removes the immediate threat.

In many other cases, the suspect, the victim or both, turn on the police as an intruder.

Last month Sgt. MacKenzie responded to a call for which the caller reported a problem with her boyfriend, but ended up being arrested herself for assault and battery after she attacked the police.

That's one of the reasons police policy is to have at least two officers respond to domestic complaints.

Andover's procedure

If a complaint is received, police:

- Send a response;
- Investigate the circumstances;
- If abuse is concerned, victims are given a card stating their rights. The rights card is provided by the Women's Resource Center and has the center's address and phone number on it.

"If we have probable cause to believe an assault and battery has taken place, the domestic abuse law gives us the right to arrest," Sgt. MacKenzie said.

If an active 209A restraining order has been violated, police have to make an arrest.

If the victim chooses to do so, a 209A emergency restraining order can be issued 24 hours a day by an on-call judge.

If an arrest is made, it is then up to the police and bail commissioner to determine if bail should be posted or if the suspect poses an immediate threat and should be held without bail.

"If we believe there's a problem, we can hold him without bail until the next court date," Sgt. MacKenzie said.

The liability has become similar to that of drunk driving. Years ago, police might have driven someone home or told them to pull over and sleep it off if they'd had too much to drink. Liability forces police to make arrests now. It's the same with domestic violence. Instead of calming people down and encouraging the two sides to work the problem out, police now are more apt to arrest when in doubt, rather than take a chance something might happen after they leave.

"It's kind of hard on us," Sgt. MacKenzie said. "The only way we can guarantee someone's safety in a serious domestic abuse case is an arrest with probable cause."

"The only other way is to break the circle of violence by getting the abused out of the house," the sergeant said.

she said.

The recent Jamie Fuller murder case in which the Beverly youth was convicted of murdering Amy Carnavale, his young girlfriend, allegedly with the full knowledge of his male friends, really bothered Ms. Perkins, she said. So did the Anita Hill hearings last year.

She talked with Ms. Farhoody last week and may again become involved in the center.

"I want to come full circle and celebrate our past efforts," Ms. Perkins said. "I don't want to be a separatist. I don't want to be a feminist. I want to be a humanist."

She does take some pride in seeing the resource center celebrate its 15th anniversary.

school needs. Six long years of wrestling to get these projects done came to an end tonight. It feels great," said Chris Outwin, a member of the School Committee.

"We are thrilled," Chairwoman Susan Jenkins added.

Efforts of one voter to reduce Article 1 by $400,000 were defeated. Donal Coleman, of 91 High St., asked that the article be reduced to $2 million. He said the School Committee could put the extra $492,000 state aid money Andover has been promised toward the remaining repairs.

"That will send a clear message to the AEA (teachers' union), that we want that money to go to repairs and not for raises," Mr. Coleman said.

Dr. Outwin told voters that state law requires the School Committee to bargain in good faith with the teachers' union, and if Town Meeting approved Mr. Coleman's amendment that would violate the good-faith trust. He added that it is the School Committee's job to negotiate contracts, not Town Meeting's job.

Mr. Coleman's amendment was overwhelmingly defeated.

Oak Street wanted to know what would happen if bids came in under the amount Town Meeting allocated. Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said if there is extra money, it would go to pay off the debt earlier than planned.

The repairs the $2.4 million will fund are: drainage at West Elementary ($450,000), the Bancroft Elementary roof ($350,000), the roof at West Middle media center ($150,000), the heating system at West Middle ($550,000), classroom renovation at West Middle ($130,000), boiler replacement at Bancroft ($85,000), fire alarms and exit hardware at all the schools ($252,000), asbestos removal at West Middle and West Elementary ($50,000), repairs to the brick/thermo pane front of West Middle ($370,000), and security systems at Bancroft, Doherty Middle, West Mid-

Article 2

Between now and the spring Town Meeting, $400,000 will be spent on architectural plans to add about 450 more elementary spaces. Last spring's Town Meeting approved $120,000 to start the planning process and study options.

The town-appointed School Building Committee will use the total of $520,000 to pick the best space option, pay for architectural designs, and bring a plan before spring Town Meeting for voter approval.

Ken Gropper, 32 Farrwood Drive, chairman of the SBC, said the committee is ahead of schedule and needs $400,000 to speed up the process and to meet a state deadline to be eligible for 60 percent reimbursement for planning funds. If all goes as planned and voters approve the SBS option next spring, the additions may be ready by September 1994, Mr. Gropper said.

Voters approve assessment inspections, retirement funding

By Don Staruk

In addition to approving the two warrant articles for the schools, residents at Monday night's Special Town Meeting appropriated $125,000 for a physical inspection of all town properties for assessment purposes, and approved establishment of a new funding schedule for the town's retirement system.

Voters denied a request by town officials to adopt an early retirement plan for municipal employees, and a private request to use $600,000 from the free

Resource Center to celebrate this Sunday

The Women's Resource Center will mark its 15 anniversary of supporting battered women and their children at a celebration dinner at the Holiday Inn in Tewksbury on Sunday, Nov. 15.

The evening, which begins at 5:30 p.m., will consist of cocktails, a silent auction and dinner. In addition, the WRC will honor Charlotte Fedders and Maria Henson for their outstanding contributions in providing national awareness of domestic violence.

Ms. Fedders' shocking story of the violent physical and emotional abuse she suffered during her 18-year marriage to John Fedders, a lawyer and former director of enforcement for the Securities and Exchange Commission in the Reagan administration, dispels the myth that domestic violence is a poor woman's problem. Her book, Shattered Dreams, is the account of how she ended her years of victimization and fear of social scandal.

Ms. Henson, assistant state editor for the Lexington Herald Leader in Kentucky, won a Pulitzer Prize this year for her research and articles titled To Have and To Harm, which concern Kentucky's failure to protect women from the men who beat them. Her series of articles succeeded in changing the way Kentucky's judicial system views domestic violence.

For tickets, call Bobbie Ahouse, director of development, 685-2480; or Laura McKellar, public relations coordinator, 373-6703. All proceeds will go to the Women's Resource Center.

Revaluation inspection

Article 5 asked residents to appropriate $125,000 to pay for a physical reinspection of all properties in town. Date from the reinspection will be used in the fiscal '94 revaluation for tax purposes.

Starting some time after Jan. 1, an outside firm will begin making physical inspections of all homes and businesses in town to update the information the assessor's office has on file. It should take about six months to complete the inspections, according to William Krajeski, town assessor.

The last physical inspection was done in 1980-'81, and the state has requested more updated information prior to revaluation next year.

Inspectors will attempt to go inside every building and view every property, but town officials realistically expect inspectors will only gain access to 40-60 percent of all buildings. Forms would be left at the remainder of properties for owners to verify current data and return to the town.

Although the assessor's office has been adjusting valuations every year with the changing market, the data they are working from has not been updated since the last physical inspection in 1980-'81. The type of information gathered in 1981 is also not the same as is used today, according to Mr. Krajeski.

The inspections should create a more equitable valuation and reduce the number of abatement requests the town has seen in recent years, Mr. Krajeski said.

Retirement

Articles 3, 4 and 6 were part of a plan to create an early retirement incentive program for municipal employees, but only Article 4, a plan to adopt a funding schedule for Andover's retirement system, was approved by voters. Article 3 was rejected and Article 6 was withdrawn by selectmen.

Article 4 would have been necessary had Article 3 passed, but it also stands on its own, according to Tony Torrisi, town finance director.

"It still makes a lot of financial sense to do it," Mr. Torrisi said.

Article 4 directs town officials to petition the Legislature to allow Andover to establish its own funding schedule for the town's retirement system, according to Mr. Torrisi.

"Right now, we appropriate what the state tells us to appropriate, so we can't plan for our appropriation costs," Mr. Torrisi said.

With approval by the Legislature, the town will now develop its own funding schedule, which should make annual changes in the appropriation less dramatic and more predictable, according to Mr. Torrisi.

cities and towns pare down salary costs. Had it been adopted, up to 50 of the town's 580 municipal employees would have been eligible for early retirement. Communities have until June 15, 1993, to adopt the early retirement plan, so it is possible the proposal will be brought back to April Town Meeting.

Article 6 asked voters to appropriate $220,000 to pay accumulated leave benefits for employees who would be retiring if Article 3 passed. It was withdrawn and could also return to April Town Meeting with the early retirement proposal.

Tax reduction denied

Article 7 asked voters to appropriate $600,000 from the free cash account to reduce the amount to be collected in property taxes in fiscal '93. This was a private article petitioned by Dennis Teves, of 8 Mohawk Road.

Selectmen and the Finance Committee recommended disapproval of this article, saying that it undermined the town's long-term financial planning, and it was soundly defeated.

More than 140 children went to Monday night's Special Town Meeting with their parents. This was the first time child care was provided, in the high school cafeteria next to the Collins Center.

EDITORIALS

It's OK to disagree

Andover would benefit from more forums where small groups of people could discuss important issues.

John O'Brien, who was elected state Senator Nov. 3, said in a local campaign speech before the election that he seeks the public's input "instead of the government's viewpoint." He plans to hold forums where residents could discuss issues.

When we held public forums here at the Townsmen to discuss the presidential and VP debates, one woman participating said the evening felt like a salon, where intelligent people gathered for discussion. She said she has been missing that opportunity.

Certainly Andover wishes and needs to discuss the teacher contract. There is much misinformation floating around the community about teachers' actions and salaries.

In the religious sector, two people are working on bridging some communication gaps. Rabbi Robert Goldstein of Temple Emanuel and the Rev. James Diamond of Christ Church began their second Thursday-night series, "The Rabbi and the Rector," last week and the second is tonight. The two congregations have paid to rent Old Town Hall (7:30 p.m., Nov. 5, 12, 19) so the entire community will understand it is encouraged to attend. Close to 200 attended last week and the rabbi said "many questions were very strong, and that's OK."

This is an opportunity for an interfaith dialogue. Rabbi Goldstein calls it "looking at a multi-colored quilt." He said he has found a "soul mate" in Rev. Diamond, that both of them are secure in their own beliefs, which allows them to explore their differences.

Rev. Diamond said that in Andover "we do not know much about people not in our group." And that, he said, leads to a lack of appreciation and understanding of one another. It appears that teachers in Andover feel the community doesn't understand them. Parents must sometimes feel that way, too.

Rev. Diamond says audience participation is critical to the rabbi and rector discussions. Andover is a multi-colored quilt. The more we talk, especially in small groups, the more we will learn about one another. That is true for Jews and Christians, as well as parents and teachers, politicians and voters — all of us. Last year, the rabbi and rector talks were good, but this year they will be "more controversial," said the rabbi, because the rector and the rabbi feel safe since they know each other well. That's progress.

Tonight's talk is about "December Mysteries," and most likely some questions related to the schools and what happens to students taking religious holidays during school time will come up. That is a topic that also needs to be aired in Andover.

We as a community are sharing our views, talking with one another, attempting to grow from and thrive on our differences. Some of us are better than others at this, but we all benefit from sharing.

If these School Committee members look tense, it's because the photo was taken at a press conference last Friday morning after Susan Dalton, left, and Mary Lyman, center, had stayed up all night negotiating with members of the teachers' union about the contract. Susan Jenkins is on the right. She is chairwoman of the School Committee.

We, as a community, need to discuss teachers' and parents' concerns

By Perry Colmore Catlin

In the middle of all this controversy of the teachers' contract and the Townsmen's coverage of it, it's difficult to say something good has come out of it. But it has.

I can hear two issues that we as a community need to address: the fact that teachers feel as if they are begging for a raise every three years, and the fact that many parents feel they have no voice when it comes to standing up in front of teachers about issues related to their children, or issues about teachers' contracts. As taxpayers, parents should have some say about teachers' contracts, but many say they feel disenfranchised in that arena because they fear what they say will be a problem for their children in the classroom.

Don't say it's ridiculous of parents to say they can't speak up without retribution, or that teachers shouldn't feel demeaned every three years about their pay because how teachers, as well as parents, feel is how they feel, whether we like it or not.

So the one bright light in all this turmoil is that the community has identified two issues on which we need to work.

I don't know what we as a community can do about teachers' contracts and how they are negotiated. I really have no idea of how that could be changed. But as a newspaper we are willing to listen, research and report on the community's effort to look into that grievance.

I have been a teacher. And I am a parent. In the last few days I have talked with many parents, some whose children are in the Andover public schools right now and some whose children are out of school. I know there is a problem concerning parents bringing their concerns to teachers about their children in school. This is not to say teachers are not listening. It is not saying teachers are not available. It is not saying teachers are bad. It is not saying all teachers will act negatively toward a child whose parent complains about something in the classroom.

What I am saying and what some parents are saying is that they feel as if they can't negotiate with teachers about something that is going on with their child.

Both of my children are in college. During these few years they both have been in college I have not yet felt I needed to step in and talk with either my son's or my daughter's teachers or department heads.

But when my children were younger, especially in elementary school, I often talked with their teachers, as well as with their school principals. I have a bachelor of science degree in education and I taught for a number of years before getting into newspaper work, so perhaps I felt confident that I had a leg to stand on and could advocate for my children without them being picked on. Or perhaps I felt if they were picked on, I would know it and do something about that, too.

But I have talked with many parents in Andover who feel they can't complain about something in the schools without that coming back on their children. That is a problem.

After the teachers' contract is settled, we as a community need to sit

Some positive comments on a teacher

Editor, Townsmen:

In response to the negative publicity in recent weeks that has appeared in the Andover Townsman regarding the Andover teachers during their bid with the School Committee to negotiate a fair, equitable and long overdue contract, I would like to draw your attention to something positive regarding a teacher I know well.

This past summer my husband, an English teacher at Andover High School, was notified by the publisher of Educational Communications Inc. that he had been nominated by a former student (now in college) to Who's Who Among America's Teachers. This is one of the most prestigious honors a teacher can receive. The only students invited to nominate a teacher are the best and brightest - the top 5 percent high school and college students.

I know my husband is but only one among many fine Andover teachers. These people have given their heart and soul to their profession. I think it is time to give respect back to teachers. Let's stop the "teacher bashing" and let's start recognizing teachers for the caring professionals that they are. Education is the key to America's future. Let's give education the professionalism it deserves. Only with this attitude will we be able to draw the future teachers of America into the field of education. It's a complex and challenging world out there beyond the classroom door. Let's hope all children have a chance to receive the best possible education our public schools can afford - and the best possible education starts with the best and brightest teachers.

As a paying subscriber I hope that the Andover Townsman will feature positive articles about teachers in the future.

I am proud to sign this letter.

down in small groups and talk about communication. Somehow, we need to help teachers understand that people are not out to get them, that the community only wants to focus on the best way to educate our children.

On a different subject, we had a couple of calls from fans of state Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover, who was re-elected last week. The callers said that our story on the election last week seemed to focus on Ellen Murphy, also of

The big wallet won the ballot's packaging question

Editor, Townsmen:

Standing in the rain at my polling place, the morning of election day, holding a sign "VOTE YES ON #3," I thought our cause was self-evident. In a state with the largest number of incinerators in the nation, an initiative to reduce wasteful packaging, thereby reducing trash, encouraging recycling and the use of recycled materials in packaging, seemed to me logical and reasonable. But I guess I was wrong.

The lesson to be learned from the defeat of Question #3 is: how out-of-state money can orchestrate the media, and spread erroneous information. How could MASSPIRG, which raised $100,000 from local small donors like my family, hope to compete with $5 million from out-of-state businesses? (The same businesses that fought the Bottle Bill, it should be noted.) The yes on #3 ads, on radio and television, ran maybe one time a day (at 1 a.m.) compared to the 100 times a day for the no on #3 ads.

Maybe a positive after effect will be a heightened awareness of the packaging in the items we buy every day. Some big companies have begun reducing packaging for the simple reason that it is more cost effective. As more people demand changes in packaging, they may begin to appear without official legislation.

For the 11 states that have similar legislation or initiatives pending, I advise: Don't let the (big money) turkeys get you down!

Thank you to all the people who voted yes on #3. With other recycling supporters in our state, we need to prepare to fight another day.

Reader: Coverage was inadequate

Editor, Townsmen:

The Andover High School Marching Band won gold medals at the New England Scholastic Band Association Finals Competition at Boston University on Nov. 1 and they deserve more than a two-paragraph blurb in "SchoolTalk" with a tiny picture of the musicians (color guard not included). But, this is just about what I expected from the Townsmen after speaking with Perry Colmore Catlin about band coverage some weeks before.

It seems the Townsmen editorial policy has "changed" from previous years when articles were written, the advertisers in the sports section are "not interested" in including the band (a multi-award winning team) and there is just "no room" for publicity about the competitions won by our high school students (unless, of course, they play football, field hockey, soccer, golf, tennis, swim etc.)

As a first-year band parent and a long-time Andover resident, I find this disgraceful. This group has worked long hours for months to achieve this honor. It should be acknowledged and celebrated!

The kids go to band camp in August, where they first begin learning their routine. The competition show is much more than what you see at football games.

All through the fall, the band and color guard practice every Thursday night and all day Saturday in addition to school rehearsals and football games. They build their program under the guidance of talented music and percussion professionals, competing almost every Sunday until the finals at B.U.

There, they perform their program under strict NESBA guidelines for field music, general effect, percussion, field visual and drum major.

You should have seen them, folks! They performed the "African Trilogy" and the crowd went wild. It was a spectacular show of flying flags, pounding drums, flashing shields and fabulous music. No wonder they won the golds.

But, what happens off the field is just as impressive. The veteran members make the new kids welcome. They accept them and include them to make everyone a part of the team. Teachers praise the first faltering steps and tentative notes, seniors give rides to practice, sophomores invite them to "hang out" together. What a wonderful way to begin a high school career.

Andover residents deserve to know about the wonderful things that are happening in the marching band.

The next time you are at the Collins Center, notice the cabinets outside the band room doors. They are filled with trophies and awards won by your band and color guard. The 1992 Andover High School Marching Band has kept up a glorious tradition. We should be very proud.

(Editor's note: Ms. Adams has taken what I said out of context and misquoted me. The policy has not changed and I did not say advertisers in the sports section are "not interested" in including band news. In fact, advertisers obviously have no say whatsoever about what editorial copy goes where in the Townsmen unless it is space they pay for.)

While we agree it would have been good to feature the band's accomplishments more prominently, the photos, which were not taken by our staff, were run small because they were out of focus and the story about the band to which Ms. Adams refers came in after deadline and we put it in the paper where we could find space at the last minute.

I phoned Ms. Adams and said the above, but she asked that I publish her letter in full and not delete the parts that I said were not correct. She said she wrote it as she saw it.)

AHS gridders use all weapons

By Rick Harrison

Andover High head football coach Dick Collins admitted he was a little nervous. And who could blame him?

His team had a 13-6 lead with 26 seconds left, and Billerica was faced with a fourth-and-goal at the Golden Warriors' 22 yard line.

Collins had reason to worry, however, because Indians' quarterback Mike Mastrullo still had one more snap to take.

"I couldn't believe how many times Mastrullo kept making the big play on third and fourth down," said Collins. "Time and again throughout the game (seven times in all) he brought them out of long yardage situations to get the first down. That's a tribute to his greatness."

Mighty Mike dropped back on this game-ending fourth down and lofted a pass toward wide receiver Craig Oliver in the left front corner of the end zone, but Andover defensive back Colin Arsenault was there to bat the ball down and preserve last weekend's major victory.

"Those are three pretty fair athletes in the deep secondary," noted Coach Collins. "You won't find many better than (Mike) Roberts, (Steve) Shepard and (Colin) Arsenault."

Shepard, in fact, displayed some greatness of his own once again on offense. He set up the tying touchdown with a 24-yard run, and scored the game-winning four minutes into the final quarter with a 36-yard blast.

"I felt we could contain Shepard," said Billerica Coach Peter Flynn. "But he's a relentless and resilient runner. We were on him all night, but he's one of the finest high school backs I've ever seen."

Shepard, who had all but three of his carries in the first quarter, finished with 84 yards in nine rushes and now boasts 12 TDs, 72 total points and over 700 yards rushing for the season.

Final threat

After Shepard's brilliant run gave Andover a 13-6 lead, Billerica mounted its last-ditch drive, which took six minutes, 20 plays and started from the Indians' 31 yard line.

Escape artist Mastrullo, who hit 9-of-24 passes for 86 yards, gained 61 yards in 11 rushes, and scored the lone Billerica touchdown to boost his season total to 55 points, kept the 11th hour march alive four times with clutch plays that produced first downs.

He hit Oliver with a 10-yard pass on third-and-10, scrambled 13 yards on third-and-12, fired a 10-yard pass to Jonathan Duggan on fourth-and-8, and raced 16 yards to the AHS eight on fourth-and-13 from the 24.

Billerica reached the Andover seven yard line in the final minute, needing a touchdown and successful two-point conversion to win, but an illegal receiver downfield penalty pushed them back to the 24 and cost them loss of down.

Arsenault then swatted away the final pass to clinch the crucial victory.

Alone at the top

Andover emerged with its sixth straight victory this season and beat Billerica for the seventh consecutive time.

The victory enabled them to take sole possession of first place in the Merrimack Valley Conference for the first time this season, completing extrication from an opening-week hole dug with a 60 loss to Methuen.

The triumph over Billerica, achieved before a chilled SRO crowd at the Indians' Marshall Middle School, lifted the Warriors to 6-1-0 overall and gave them a half-game edge over quad-runnersup Billerica, Chelmsford, Methuen and Central Catholic (all 6-2-0).

Andover is seeking its first MVC title since 1975 and the sixth during Coach Collins' reign.

"Everyone's acting like we just won the World Series," said Collins. "We haven't had many bigger wins since

I've been here, but we still have three tough games ahead of us (Chelmsford, North Andover and Central Catholic).

Coach Collins

may have felt fortunate because Billerica finished first everywhere but on the scoreboard, compiling wide statistical edges in first downs (13-5), yards rushing (152-112), yards passing (86-10), total yardage from scrimmage (238-122) and scrimmage plays (65-34).

Gov. Cuomo kicks off Salem State College speaker series

The 11th annual Salem State College Series will feature as its special guest speakers New York Governor Mario Cuomo, Ms. founder Gloria Steinem and tennis great Arthur Ashe.

Gov. Cuomo will be in Salem, Mass., on Monday, Nov. 16; Ms. Steinem will speak on Feb. 25, 1993; and Mr. Ashe will wrap up the series on April 1. All lectures start at 7:30 p.m. in the SSC O'Keefe Sports Center.

Gov. Cuomo, the first speaker to repeat at the series, enjoyed a standing-room-only sellout at his first appearance in Nov. 1988. Only two weeks after the presidential election, he will remark on the outcome of the voting and what Gov. Bill Clinton's election as president will mean for the nation.

Gov. Cuomo was first elected to his current office in 1983. In 1990, he became the first Democratic governor in New York State's history to be elected to a third four-year term and is the only New York governor ever to win the office by more than a million votes twice.

21, at 8 p.m.; and Sunday, Nov. 22, at 2 p.m.

Tickets may be reserved and purchased only through the Phillips Academy Box Office at 749-4434. Tickets will be $5 and are general admission only. The Tang Theater is located in George Washington Hall, off Chapel Avenue, across from the Andover Inn.

This production stars Marc Baker '93 of Lynnfield; Beth Canterbury '93 of Andover; Dan Hatfield '95 of Reading; and Peter Radochia '94 of Andover as one of the student technical directors.

Directed by Michael Brown and Bada Polanco, who also directed the production of Into the Woods, which inaugurated the Francis Y. Tang Main Stage last spring, this will be the first theater-in-the-round production presented there.

Central Catholic High School Theatre Guild producing The Pink Panther Strikes Again

The Central Catholic High School Theatre Guild will produce the award-winning comedy The Pink Panther Strikes Again next weekend, Nov. 19-21 at 7:30 p.m. in the Allan B. Rogers Memorial Theater at Central Catholic High School.

The major roles will be played as follows: Inspector Jacques Clouseau (Michael Currier of Methuen), Paul Dreyfuss (Glenn Wakely of Andover), Dr. Hugo Fassbender (Matt Jianino of Lowell), Margo (Melissa Groves of Methuen), and Olga Berriosiva (Christine LaPlume).

The play will be directed by Karen

Moynihan.

Chief Inspector Jacques Clouseau, a role originally created by Peter Sellers, fights for his life and for the future of all mankind in "the most bizarre and dangerous caper of his brilliantly successful and utterly clumsy career."

Mr. Clouseau is out to stop his former boss-turned-lunatic Paul Dreyfuss, who holds the world at bay with his Doomsday Machine.

Tickets are available at Central Catholic High School or at the door.

The cost is $5.

AHS boys' soccer opens Division 2 tourney with 2-1 win

By Rick Harrison

Keith Selvitelli pumped in his eighth and ninth goals of the season in the first half, and the defense hung tough in the second half, as the Andover High boys' varsity soccer team opened Eastern Mass. Division 2 North Tournament play with an impressive 2-1 victory over Belmont High at the Middlesex League Marauders' home field.

The triumph earned the Golden Warriors, 14-3-2 overall, a Sectional quarterfinal round date with top-seeded Middlesex League champ Winchester (16-1-1) earlier this week.

If Coach Dave Amundsen's crew beat Winchester it was scheduled to play in the semifinal round yesterday. The Sectional championship game will be this Saturday.

If AHS lost in either the quarters or semis of the single-elimination tourney it brought to a close this successful 1992 season.

Boys' soccer

This is the Warriors' 15th post-season appearance in 18 years under Coach Amundsen, whose club saw-sawed in and out of first place throughout the year and finally locked in second just two points behind two-time defending division titlist Lowell High.

Andover also closed out the regular season with a resounding 6-0 romp over Tewksbury (8-6-6), which subsequently edged Dracut 1-0 in its tourney opener before bowing out to Winchester 3-0.

Andover, 2-1 (Tournament)

The Golden Warriors, who have advanced as far as the Sectional finals once, took a 1-0 lead 18 minutes into the opener against Belmont when Keith Selvitelli netted a 35-yard shot.

Josh Nelken collected his sixth assist and 20th point of the season on the goal.

Selvitelli made it 2-0 by blasting home a game-winning penalty shot with 30 seconds left in the half. Andover played most of the game without second high scorer Quang Nguyen (7-10-17 points), who was crunched while trying to play the ball about 10 minutes into the 80-minute contest.

"Quang got crunched. There's no other way to describe it," said Coach Amundsen. "There was nothing nasty or malicious about it. It was just a very aggressive play by Belmont."

Amundsen wasn't sure whether his junior forward would be back for the Winchester quarterfinal.

"We overcame some terrible field conditions at Belmont. The field was a quagmire. Half of it was mush, and that's tough on a skill team like us.

"Defensively we did an excellent job. Our midfielders took care of the Belmont thrusts and controlled play most of the way," said Amundsen.

The Marauders notched their lone goal midway through the second half, top scorer incredible ease.

Josh Nelken broke a brief personal scoring drought with his 13th and 14th goals of the season. Dan Bucholtz added one goal and one assist, and other marksmen were Rhett Bachner, Dave Poulo and Kevin Nusky.

Keith Selvitelli, Quang Nguyen, Lyle Morgan and Drew Leinson contributed one assist apiece.

"The game wasn't as bad as the final score makes it sound," said Coach Amundsen. "Tewksbury hit the post early, when it was still 0-0, and if that shot went in it might have been a totally different story."

"This was the second worst performance by a Tewksbury boys' soccer team since the program started in 1976," lamented Redmen Coach Levine. "We everything fell apart at once, but hopefully we can come back together for the tourney."

All-Conference

Seniors Josh Nelken and Keith Selvitelli have both been named to the 15-player 1992 MVC All-Conference squad, while Andover seniors John Martin and Kevin Nusky are on the 15-member league first All-Star team.

The setback left Coach Dick Loschi's Lady Warriors at 12-4-3 overall.

They were second in the Merrimack Valley Conference, qualified for the tournament for the eighth straight year, and are now 118-26-18. This marked the second straight year Framingham (15-1-2) had bounced Andover from the tournament.

AHS started the game without senior midfielder and Tri-Captain Hilary Recesso, the team's fourth high scorer, who was nursing a sprained ankle. Both Andover goaltenders, senior Beth Everett and sophomore Kim Kelley, were forced out of the contest with injuries.

This was only the third time in 19 games Andover was shut out, the Lady Warriors scoring at least two goals in their other 16 contests.

The Bay State League powerhouse was paced by Heather Ganley with two goals, while Jill Brown and Sarah Dacey added one apiece.

Playing well for Andover were sweeper Lindsey Sweeney, forward Becky Levine, midfielder Tay Hollander and Tri-Captain Rachel Roberts.

Appearing in their final game for senior-dominated Andover were Sweeney, Everett, Roberts, Levine, Hollander, Everett, Marcia Gemmell, Michelle Morey, Cara Morrison, Colleen Murnane, Allysa Sonntag, Maureen Wade, Tara Griffin and Kara O'Handley.

Dick Rammacher of Radon Diagnostic Services

Radon Diagnostic Services

The arrival of cold weather and the resultant closing up of the house to retain heat makes this the perfect time to have your home tested for radon gas and its entry paths. Richard Rammacher, president of Radon Diagnostic Services, a division of Biosources, Ltd., will come to you with radon gas monitors which can provide fast and accurate measurements of radon levels in your home or place of business. The EPA, Surgeon General, Massachusetts Department of Health and American Lung Association recommend that all dwellings be tested for elevated levels of radon gas. An EPA survey has shown that more than one third of Merrimack Valley homes have dangerously high levels of this naturally occurring gas. Radon Diagnostic

Services can identify and repair these homes.

Dick Rammacher is an approved EPA radon contractor, permitting him to design and install cost-effective radon remediation systems that permanently reduce radon concentrations to safe levels.

Radon Diagnostic Services uses state-of-the-art instrumentation which can give immediate on-site results. Tests of three or four locations within a home can be completed within 90-minutes. Long-term test devices, often left on the premises, continue to measure radon levels for as long as a year. In the case of real estate transactions, continuous radon monitoring for at least 48 hours is strongly recommended. This procedure is selected because it is accurate, tamper resistant and results are immediately available. A comprehensive, confidential written report is prepared for the customer.

High radon concentrations in any home can be permanently reduced to safe levels. This requires a competent and experienced mitigation contractor, who can repair the homes with guaranteed results. Dick Rammacher has successfully mitigated hundreds of homes. In 1991 and 1992 more than 50 Andover homes were remediated with average radon reductions exceeding 90 percent.

If you have any questions concerning radon, its detection and reduction, Dick Rammacher is available to answer them. For a free consultation, call Dick at (508) 794-3354. Susan Pokress

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN. (never known to fail.) O most beautiful flower of Mount Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. O star of the Sea, help me and show me here you are my mother. O Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to secure me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. O Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have resorted to thee (3 times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (3 times). Say this prayer for 3 consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. F.

said Monday the committee and teachers' union representatives will meet with the mediator next week, but in the meantime he is investigating several legal options the committee may wish to pursue. One option might be to file "bad faith bargaining practices" charges against the teachers' union with the state Labor Relations Commission, because the union voted to strike, regardless of the fact that it didn't.

"They have authorized their membership to take illegal action. Obviously that's not appropriate," Mr. Kaitz said.

Conflict of interest

Two of the three members of the state Labor Relations Commission, Bill Dalton and acting member Jean Driscoll, have a conflict of interest in Andover's teacher union contract dispute.

Mr. Dalton was raised in town and has been a resident most of his life until he moved to North Andover recently. He also practices law in town and is the brother-in-law of School Committee member Susan Dalton.

Ms. Driscoll, 15 Greenwood Road, who is a temporary member, has children in the public schools. Mr. Dalton and Ms. Driscoll would have to step aside and not become involved in any LRC decisions involving Andover.

If the teacher strike, the committee's lawyer would notify the LRC. Because two-thirds of the commission has a conflict of interest, the complaint would go to the courts, which is usually the second step after a LRC investigation, said Ms. Dalton a member of the committee's bargaining team and a graduate of Massachusetts School of Law.

"Just because the labor commission, by a coincidence, has conflict of interest, doesn't mean that (Andover) gets penalized," she said.

If the courts decide an illegal strike is happening, the teachers will be ordered back to work. If they do not return to work, they may be fined or jailed.

Superintendent writes parents about possibility of teacher strike

Townsmen editor responds to criticism

By Lisa Boudreau

In a letter sent home to parents last Thursday, Nov. 5, Superintendent Mark McQuillan announced contingency plans in case of a teacher strike and communicated his dissatisfaction with a Townsmen editorial and a column, both written by editor Perry Colmore Catlin.

In his letter, Dr. McQuillan said he was concerned for teachers because Ms. Colmore Catlin published excerpts from unsigned letters sent to the Townsmen by parents who criticized some teacher performances in town and generally did not support teachers' raises. Dr. McQuillan called the letters "incorrect and needlessly insulting" and labeled the columns "mean-spirited gossip."

Dr. McQuillan told the Townsmen he's within his rights as superintendent of schools to distribute such a letter to parents.

Susan Jenkins, chairwoman of the School Committee, said Dr. McQuillan was well within his rights to send a letter to parents concerning an operational issue.

"Personally, I believe what he had to say were things that had to be said," Ms. Jenkins told the Townsmen.

"He's not taking sides. He's concerned with the delivery of education in Andover and he felt the columns and unsigned letters interfered with that," she said.

Dr. McQuillan told a Townsmen reporter that he "took issue" with the columns and Ms. Colmore Catlin's judgment in using unsigned letters.

"The question is, how can we deal with dissatisfaction without resorting to unsigned letters? It troubles me a great deal when the community feels it has to go to the paper with unsigned letters. I want to assure parents that there are outlets to pursue other than unsigned letters, especially because they are very divisive and such a move continues to pit parents against teachers."

"I don't think anyone understands the damage a strike can do until it happens," he said.

"I am unwilling to take responsibility for a strike, or no strike for that matter," Ms. Colmore Catlin said. "And I did not pit parents against teachers. The problem already existed. I only published a body of information that was circulating in the community - parents' fear of retribution. At this point, I am the convenient scapegoat in the controversy."

Dr. McQuillan said his letter was intended to address relationship issues in the school system, not bargaining issues between the School Committee and teachers.

"I was not taking sides. I was speaking as the superintendent and as the superintendent I am free to speak my mind," Dr. McQuillan said.

He hopes a good thing - more open communication between the administration, parents and schools - will result from his letter. Dr. McQuillan said he will be working with Eileen Woods, assistant superintendent, to organize forums where parents will feel free to discuss their concerns and voice their dissatisfaction with school personnel.

Hot bishop (a hot, festive drink)

"A merry Christmas, Bob!" said Scrooge, with an earnestness that could not be mistaken, as he clapped him on the back. "A merrier Christmas, Bob, my good fellow, than I have given you for many a year! I'll raise your salary, and endeavor to assist your struggling family, and we will discuss your affairs this very afternoon, over a Christmas bowl of smoking bishop..."

Cheddar cheese and olive balls

From The Williamsburg Cookbook; recipe makes 36-40 balls.

- 1/2 pound cheddar cheese
- 1/2 cup butter, softened
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 36 to 40 small stuffed green olives, drained

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees 10 minutes before the cheese balls are to go in.

Grate the cheese and allow it to soften to room temperature.

Combine the cheese, butter and paprika.

Mix well into the flour, by hand, until the pieces of cheese disappear and the mixture is smooth and deep yellow in color.

Cover and allow it to stand at room temperature 15 minutes.

Pinch off small pieces of dough (about 1 teaspoon) and flatten in palm of hand to a circle about 1 1/2 inches in diameter.

Place a well-drained olive in the center of the dough, bringing the edges together to cover the olive completely. Roll gently between palms of hands.

1/2 pound large mushrooms, sliced
1 small onion, chopped
Dust meat with flour. Brown meat in heated oil in a large Dutch oven or oven-proof casserole. Combine remaining ingredients. Stir well. Bake covered at 350 degrees for 2 1/2 to 3 hours. Season with salt to taste. Serves six to eight.
You can get this ready in the morning, refrigerate and bake later in the day.

Boiled lobsters for 6

Submitted by Kathy Mordecai, whose family occasionally substitutes lobster for Thanksgiving turkey.

To serve six people, you can either buy 3 large lobsters and cut them up after cooking, or serve 6 smaller lobsters (1 1/2 pounds each), leaving them whole. Buy them as close to cooking time as possible for freshness. Cover and refrigerate.

Bring a large kettle of water to a rolling boil. Add the lobsters quickly, one at a time, and start timing once they are in the pot. Ten minutes per pound will do it (a 1 1/2-pounder will take 15 minutes from the time it goes in; a 3-pounder will take 30 minutes). Set timer accordingly to weight.

Use tongs to pull lobsters out from the pot once they've cooked; pile them into a large bowl to cool slightly and serve with melted butter and lemon wedges.

Easy chicken

Submitted by Joanne Smith of Andover.

- 8 boned chicken breasts
- 8 slices Swiss cheese
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- 1/2 cup dry sherry
- 1/2 cup butter/margarine
- 1 cup Pepperidge Farm stuffing mix

Wash chicken breasts and dry with paper towels. Layer in bottom of 9x12-inch Pyrex dish. Layer Swiss cheese on top. Mix soup with sherry and spread over cheese. Melt butter, mix with stuffing mix and sprinkle over top. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 to 40 minutes.

"Simply the Best"

RE/MAX preferred

451 Andover St., No. Andover, MA

This is a typical Sunday evening with Lillian and her mom whipping up something for dinner. "After a busy Sunday open house, I go to my mom's where my family has gathered for dinner. I love to eat and enjoy cooking immensely. But with my busy schedule I need recipes that are quick, but delicious. I like to make a sauce out of red bell peppers and cream that is wonderful on pasta and fish."

Recipe:

Salsa di Peperoni Rossi (Red Pepper Sauce) - Makes 3 1/2 cups

- 4 large red bell peppers
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly grated black pepper
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 cup heavy cream or half-and-half
- 1/4 cup minced fresh basil or thyme
- 1 teaspoon grated nutmeg

Place the peppers on a lightly greased broiler pan and broil, turning occasionally, until blackened all over, about 15 minutes. Place the peppers in a large paper bag, close the bag tightly, and let cool for 20 minutes. Peel the peppers and remove the seeds and cores. Rinse the peppers well, place them in a food processor or blender, and puree until smooth. Set aside.

In a large frying pan, heat the butter and saute the garlic over medium heat until soft. Add the pepper puree and mix well. Lower the heat and gradually stir in the heavy cream. Add the nutmeg, salt, and pepper and cook, stirring for 5 minutes. Remove from the heat and stir in the basil or thyme. Serve immediately over hot pasta or refrigerate for up to 3 days.

Turkey questions? 10 timesaver tips

A house full of guests for Thanksgiving dinner can throw even the best cook into a tizzy. Never fear, help is here, only a phone call away. The toll-free Reynolds Turkey Information Line walks you step-by-step through three different methods for roasting a turkey.

A recorded message starts with how to defrost a turkey. Then, you can choose to hear instructions for roasting a turkey using the traditional aluminum foil tent method, foil-wrapped method or oven cooking-bag method. Through Monday, Nov. 30, you can call 1-800-745-4000 seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

To help you take the hassle out of the rest of your Thanksgiving feast here are ten time-saver tips from the Reynolds Wrap Kitchens home economists:

- No-Scrub Pan Liner — There are no messy pans to scrub when you use aluminum foil. Mold foil over the inverted roasting pan; remove foil. Flip pan over and place foil and turkey inside. Line pans for stuffing, too.

- Easy Casserole Cleanup — Eliminate a sticky mess from your favorite sweet potato casserole by using an oven-cooking bag. In the microwave or conventional oven, sweet potatoes stay moist.

Sweet potato pie with poppyseed- cheddar crust

Submitted by Perry Colmore Catlin.

1 poppyseed-cheddar crust, unbaked
2 pounds sweet potatoes
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon cinnamon
3 seedless oranges, peeled and sectioned
½ cup chopped toasted nuts (cashews and/or pecans)
½ tsp. salt
1 tablespoon honey
½ cup firm yogurt (optional)
Topping:
½ cup wheat germ
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
Dots of butter
Peel sweet potatoes, cut them into chunks and boil until soft.
Drain sweet potatoes, transfer them to a bowl and mash them well. Add all the other ingredients (except those for the topping) and mix well.
Spread into unbaked crust. Sprinkle with wheat germ and cheese and apply a few dots of butter here and there. Bake at 375 degrees, uncovered, 40 to 50 minutes.
Traditionally a sweet potato pie is a dessert. This one is a supper dish.

it isn't quite sweet nor could it be considered savory. It is just pleasant and subtle. Serve it with a tossed-greens salad and some freshly-baked lemon-yogurt muffins.

Gingered cranberry and orange relish

½ cup cubed unpeeled thin-skinned orange
1½ cups fresh cranberries
1 cup cubed unpeeled Red Delicious apple
1 tablespoon chopped crystallized ginger
½ cup honey
Position knife blade in food processor bowl; add orange. Process 15 seconds or until finely chopped. Add cranberries, apple and ginger. Pulse six times or until chopped; spoon into a bowl. Add honey and stir well. Cover and chill one hour. Yields 2½ cups (½ cup serving size).

Scallop casserole

Submitted by Mary Grady.
6 ounces shredded gruyere cheese (or Jarlsburg or dofino cheese)
1 cup mayonnaise
½ cup dry white wine

- Extra Large Mixing Bowl — To make a bowl large enough to mix turkey stuffing, line your kitchen sink with heavy-duty aluminum foil.
- Easy Roll Pie Crust — Roll pastry between two sheets of wax paper, which saves you from having to add extra flour to the pastry. Pie crusts are tender and flaky.
- Pie Crust Saver — Fold a 12-inch square of foil into quarters. Cut out center and round off corners. Unfold; crimp foil ring over pie before baking. Remove foil after 15 minutes.
- Super Glove — Keep hands clean while preparing dinner. "Wear" a plastic zipper food bag to grease pans with shortening or press graham cracker crumbs into a pie pan.

- Keep Foods Warm — After removing cooked foods from the oven or microwave, wrap with foil to hold in heat until serving time.

- Festive Holiday Table — Brighten up a vegetable tray by lining a shallow basket with colored plastic wrap. It protects the basket as well as making the Thanksgiving table more festive.

- Store Leftovers Neatly — Fold down the top of the bag to form a cuff when filling plastic zipper bags with leftovers. This allows the bag to stand up by itself, to fill.

- Color-Coded Refrigerator — Color code leftovers with colored plastic wrap. Green could mean "OK for snacking"; red, "save for tonight's sandwiches."

Savory chestnut stuffing

Submitted by Betsy Williams, Andover herbalist and folklorist, who told the Townsman, "The stress of Christmas used to get me down, until I learned that — for our European ancestors — Christmas wasn't just a day, but a whole season. The Christmas season begins in many parts of the world with St. Nicholas Day, Dec. 6; builds to Christmas; and winds down on Jan. 6 with the Feast of the Epiphany, or Twelfth Night. In between are St. Lucy's Day, Dec. 14; Feast of St. Thomas and the winter solstice, Dec. 21; Christmas Eve and Christmas Day; St. Stephen's or Boxing Day, Dec. 26; New Year's Eve and New Year's Day. To celebrate each of them, however slightly, adds to the joy of anticipation.

"Here's a recipe for my family's favorite Christmas turkey stuffing."

2 pounds fresh chestnuts (4 cups)
2 cups chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup butter or margarine
8 cups dry bread cubes
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon ground sage
½ cup chicken broth
2 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

In a covered saucepan, boil chestnuts in shells in water for 15 minutes. Drain. Make a cut in each with a sharp knife and peel off shell. Chop chestnuts. Cook celery and onion in butter or margarine until tender, but not brown. In a large bowl, combine celery and onion mixture, chestnuts, bread cubes, salt, pepper, poultry seasoning and sage. Toss lightly with chicken broth. Makes enough stuffing for a 10- to 12-pound turkey.

½ pound salt pork
½ pound onions
½ pound butter or margarine
dash of Accent
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
2 tablespoons sugar
1 #1 can chicken consommé

Wet bread down with cold chicken consommé or use water with chicken base as a supplement. Put salt pork and onions through a fine grinder. Place in a heavy saucepan. Add butter and saute for 20 minutes. Cool. Add this mixture to the bread. Season with poultry seasoning, sugar, Accent. Mix ingredients thoroughly. Set for 30 minutes. If more moisture is needed, supplement with water.

DESSERTS & AFTER-DINNER DELIGHTS

Kruski (a delicate pastry)

Submitted by Olga Jenkins.

"This is an old Lithuanian recipe from my grandmother. Kruskis are served on all major holidays."

6 egg yolks
6 tablespoons sugar
1 cup sweet cream
2 tablespoons rum
¾ to 4 cups flour, approximately
Deep fat for frying
Confectioner's sugar

Cream yolks and sugar until creamy white. Combine with the cream and rum, then add enough flour so that dough can be rolled out very thin, like noodle dough, on floured board. Take about a fourth of the dough at a time, keeping the rest covered to prevent drying. Roll out thin on board and cut into strips about 1 inch wide and 5 inches long. Cut a short lengthwise slit in the center of each strip and pass one end of the strip through the slit. Repeat until all the dough is used up.

Fry in deep fat until golden brown, then drain on paper towels. When cool, sprinkle with confectioner's sugar.

Submitted by Jennifer Evans of Andover.

1 square unsweetened chocolate
½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup finely chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Melt chocolate and butter over hot water. Remove from heat and add remaining ingredients, except nuts. Spread into two greased 8x8x2-inch pans. Sprinkle with nuts. Bake about 12 minutes. Cool slightly and cut into squares. Makes 2½ dozen.

1 teaspoon chocolate extract
½ teaspoon coconut extract

Blend all ingredients well for four minutes. Store in covered container in refrigerator.

Wheat germ brownies

Ann Morgan of Andover got this recipe from a cousin in Nova Scotia, Canada. She added the grated orange rind to the recipe and uses melted margarine instead of the vegetable oil.

2 beaten eggs
½ cup vegetable
2 tablespoons molasses
¾ to ½ cup brown sugar
2 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup powdered milk
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup raisins
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 cup wheat germ
½ teaspoon baking powder

Mix all ingredients except wheat germ and baking powder and stir well. Then add wheat germ and baking powder and stir to blend (approximately 20 strokes). Pour into a greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes.

Chocolate coconut cups

Submitted by Annette Bernier.

8 oz. bittersweet chocolate

1½ cup flaked coconut

Put 25 foil candy cups on a cookie sheet.

Melt chocolate in the top of a double boiler over barely simmering water, stirring constantly. Remove from hot water and add coconut. Mix lightly until coconut is completely coated with chocolate. Drop a teaspoonful of mixture into each foil cup. Chill in the refrigerator until firm.

After they are firm, they may be stored in an airtight container in a cool, dry place.

Lisa's chocolate mousse bombe

Submitted by Lisa Boudreau.

You will need:

1 jellyroll or deep cookie sheet pan

1 chocolate cake batter, from mix or scratch

1 bowl, about 1 to 2 quarts in volume plastic wrap

1. Prepare a chocolate cake as directions indicate. Spread in a jellyroll pan or deep cookie sheet. Bake as directions indicate. The finished, cooled cake should be no thicker than one inch.

2. Line the bowl with plastic wrap.

3. Cut a circle from the sheet cake and fit it to the bottom of the bowl. Then cut blunt triangles from the cake and place them around the edge of the bowl, alternating small and large ends so that they fit tightly and leave no gaps. From the remaining cake, cut a large circle the same size as the top of the bowl. Put the large circle and remaining cake scraps aside.

Chocolate Mousse:

12 ounces package of semi-sweet chocolate chips

7 egg whites

5 egg yolks

½ teaspoon cream of tartar

½ teaspoon salt

Melt chips over a double boiler, making sure they do not burn. Once melted, beat until creamy and set aside to cool.

Beat egg yolks and add to melted chips. Beat until smooth.

In a different bowl, beat egg whites, salt and cream of tartar until whites form dry, stiff peaks.

Beat in one large spoon of egg whites to melted chocolate and yolk mixture. Fold in remaining whites to the chocolate.

Spoon mousse mixture the cake-lined bowl. Add cake scraps to mousse, pushing them down into the mousse.

Cover the bowl with the large cake circle. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate overnight with a light weight on top of bowl.

Next day invert mold, remove wrap. Keep refrigerated until ready to serve.

Suggestion: sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving.

Chocolate nut truffles

Submitted by Annette Bernier.

8 ounces semisweet chocolate

6 tablespoons unsalted butter

½ cup heavy cream

1 teaspoon vanilla extract

½ cup finely chopped almonds

Melt chocolate and butter in the top of a double boiler, over barely simmering water, stirring constantly. Remove from hot water and set aside.

In a small, heavy saucepan, bring cream just to the boil. Remove from heat and pour cream into chocolate mixture. Mix well. Add vanilla and stir until mixture is smooth. Pour into a shallow bowl and set aside to cool, stirring occasionally.

Cover the bowl and chill in refrigerator for about four hours or until mixture is firm but not solid.

Spread chopped nuts on a plate. Scoop up chocolate mixture with a teaspoon and shape it into rough balls. Roll balls in the nuts.

The secret of successful truffles is the quality of the chocolate. Always use the best chocolate available. Truffles should be stored in a covered container in the refrigerator. They will keep for about two weeks. Serve them at room temperature.
